

Chemonics Contracts with USAID. Devex, 10 Mar 2025

And then there were none two

Few organizations in the aid sector have emerged unscathed from Trump's foreign aid freeze, but some have had it worse than others.

Chemonics International, which was the largest for-profit contractor for USAID, has been pummeled by the agency's collapse, with the vast majority of its contracts terminated.

However, last week, two of these termination letters were rescinded: one on supply chains for malaria products and the other on education to counter extremism in Syria, Sara reports.

Her article, which includes internal documents, vividly illustrates USAID's own confusion about which contracts it has canceled and the haphazard nature of those terminations.
