

World Affairs Councils of America (WACA) has a current opening for a global education manager. Priority application deadline is August 21, 2026.

WACA seeks a global education manager to lead the development, coordination, and implementation of WACA's educational programs and initiatives, advancing the organization's mission to deepen global awareness through meaningful learning experiences. This role oversees a portfolio of national education programs, including Academic WorldQuest, the Student Scholars Program, Engage America, and educational resources designed to support the World Affairs Councils network.

This role is central to ensuring educational quality, participant engagement, program growth, and strong partnerships across WACA's education initiatives. The global education manager works closely with students, educators, member Councils, volunteers, funders, and programmatic partners to strengthen WACA's national impact.

This full-time, primarily in-person position is based in Washington, DC, and reports to the chief executive officer. It is well-suited for an experienced education or nonprofit professional seeking significant responsibility in program development, partnership management, and national educational initiatives. Because WACA operates with a collaborative staff structure, successful candidates will enjoy working across functional areas, contributing beyond their primary responsibilities when needed, and helping colleagues achieve shared organizational goals.

Full information, including application instructions ahead of the August 21 priority deadline, is available on our website and in this LinkedIn post.

Thank you, as always, for engaging with the national Council network. I look forward to seeing you soon.

Kind regards,
Matthew

Matthew Hughes, President and CEO
World Affairs Councils of America
1000 Vermont Avenue NW, Suite 900, Washington, DC 20005
+1 202-833-4557, office | +1 202-914-7659, mobile
www.worldaffairscouncils.org

World
Affairs
Councils of America